Attributed to Mrs. Hannah Wolley.

This edition does not contain the part on angling. For a later edition, containing this part, see Complete servant-maid (The).

Account (An) of the new method of fishing on the coasts of Shetland. 1884. 8°. See [Fea, James].

"Literatur," after p. 140.

Ang. 26.2 Adams, Andrew Leith. Field and forest rambles, with notes and observations on the natural history of eastern Canada. London. 1873. 8°. Front., maps, wdcts., etc.

10½.23 Another copy.

Also another edition.

The appendix includes "Observations on the habits of the salmon family; by W. Henry."

Also another edition.

Adventures (The) of a salmon in the river Dee. 1853. 16°. See [Ayrton, William].

The first chapter of the fifteenth book contains the first account by any author of fishing with the artificial fly. A translation of the passage is found in Osmund Lambert's "Angling literature in England," pp. 12–14. Aelian's work also includes particulars of other modes of fishing by the ancients. The author lived at Rome about the middle of the third century.

Ga 3.370 Another copy.

47.31 Agassiz, Louis. Contributions to the natural history of the United States of America. 5 vol. Boston, etc. 1857–77. 4°. Plates and woodcuts.

Four of the plates are colored.

Vol. v. has also the title, "North American starfishes, by Alexander Agassiz, Cambridge, 1877." The first part together with plates i.–viii. was first published in Dec. 1864. "The cyprinodonts" by S. Garman is to be regarded as a continuation of this work.

47.31 Another copy of vol. i.–iv.

Ang. 1.19 Another copy of vol. i., ii., iv.

Ang. 1.19.2 Another copy of vol. iv.

(Atlas, 46.26) The date of the 1st livraison of the atlas is correct in this copy.
Ang. 46.4 Agassiz, Louis. Lake Superior; its physical character, vegetation, and animals, compared with those of other and similar regions. With a narrative of the tour by J. E. Cabot, and contributions by other scientific gentlemen. Boston. 1850. 8°. Front., vign., map, and 15 plates.

"The landscape illustrations are from sketches made on the spot by Mr. Cabot. Those of the second part were drawn and lithographed by Mr. Sonrel, a Swiss artist of much distinction in this branch." Five of the plates contain illustrations of fishes.

45.53 Another copy.

"A series of fishing scenes, with illustrations of the West-country dialect," is added to the title of the copy quoted by Westwood and Satchell.

*Ang. 1.27 Albin, Eleazar. The history of esculent fish, with plates drawn and engraved by Eleazar Albin; and an essay on the breeding of fish, and the construction of fish-ponds, by Roger North. London. 1794. 4°. pp. 80. 18 col. plates.

*Ang. 1.37 Aldam, W. H., editor. A quaint treatise on "Flees, and the art aartyfichall fleec making"; by an old man well known on the Derbyshire streams as a first-class fly-fisher a century ago. Printed from an old MS. never before published, the original spelling and language being retained; with editorial notes, and patterns of flies, and samples of the materials for making each fly. London. 1876. 4°. Col. front. and 7 plates.

The frontispiece and one of the plates are chromo-lithographic fac-similes from water drawings by James Poole; the other plates contain 22 samples of flies, and materials for making them.

Wdcts.

The title-page is engraved.
The date in the colophon is 1612.

"Not merely ichthyological. To many of the descriptions of fish is appended a chapter 'Capiendi ratio.'" —Westwood and Satchell.

A fac-simile of his manuscript account, printed on one side of the leaf only.

This work is more often quoted as containing a preface, memoir of the author, and poem "Walton and Cotton in the fishing house."

Also another edition.

1st edition, 1859.

Ang. 18.64.5 [Alfred, H. Jervis.] The modern angler; containing instructions in the art of fly-fishing, spinning, and bottom-fishing, fully describing the tackle and other requisites. No more published.

The frontispiece and two full page illustrations of fishes in the volume for 1855, are taken from Blakey's "Angling; or, How to angle and where to go." This volume also contains "The angler's library," pp. 74–79.

Ang. 22.3 Angler's assistant (The); or, A new and complete treatise on the art of angling. Containing every necessary instruction to practice with success this most healthy pastime; also directions for choosing and making angling rods, lines, flies, &c. London. [1813?] sm. 8°. pp. 28. Front. and vign.

The frontispiece is dated 1813.

Ang. 18.24 Angler's companion (The); being a complete practical guide to angling, with the properties, names, and where to be found of all river fish. To which is added Nobbs's Art of trolling, and the technical terms used in angling. London. [1824?] 12°. pp. 32. Col. front.

The frontispiece is dated 1824.

The "technical terms" do not appear.

Ang. 22.4 Angler's companion (The); being a description of where to find and how to fish the various swims in the Horse and Groom, Lea bridge, and White House fisheries. London. [18—.] 16°. pp. 36. Front., wdcts., and map.

The angling treatise is followed by "An angling excursion; a true story."

Originally published in 1840, 1841, and 1843 as "The angler's guide to the Horse and Groom, Lea bridge, and White House fisheries." "The angler's companion and guide to the White House fishery," attributed by Pickering to James Martin, and published without date, is probably the forerunner of this work.
Angler's desideratum (The). 1839. 16°. See [Clarke, Capt.——, R. M.].

Angler's diary (The). [1878.] 8°. See [Cox, I. E. B.].

Ang. 45.20  Fisher’s garland (The), for 1821–1845. 28 vol. Newcastle. 1821 ['23]–45. sm. 8°. Vigns.

Nos. i.–xxvi. were published by Emerson Charnley, the others by William Garret.

Each title-page contains a woodcut, most of them from blocks by Thomas Bewick. With a few exceptions, however, the blocks have been so thoroughly changed that it is difficult to recognize them.

The title “Fisher’s garland” does not appear on nos. vi. and xxvii. The number of copies of the Garlands printed varied from 196 (iv.) to 400 (viii.), being commonly under 300, and may be found, with other details, in Westwood and Satichell, pp. 157–160.

"Written in easy style for boys."

The set is very imperfect:—it contains only 34 numbers of vol. vii. and less than half of vi., viii.–x., xi.

The frontispiece and all the plates but one are colored.

The second part is substantially the work of Andrew Young, who was the manager of the duke of Sutherland’s salmon-fisheries, and a great authority on the subject.

With extracts from the journals of M. S. Biddulph.  London. 1850.  8°.  Front., map, wdcts., and 9 plates.

Contains a short account of the fisheries of Bergen, and occasional references to angling.

The illustrations are from sketches made during the rambles by Lieut. Biddulph, and the map has been constructed from his personal observations.
Forrester, Frank, pseudon. See Herbert, Henry William.

The present "edition has become very rare, and is, on the whole, the most interesting contribution made by France to the literature of angling."—Westwood and Satchell.

This was the forerunner of a series of works with the same or similar titles, by various compilers. Louis Liger's "Amusemens de la campagne" was founded upon it, and in several editions the first book of "Les ruses" appears without alteration, and with reduced copies of the illustrations.

The initials used by the author in the title are interpreted: Frère François Fortin religieux de Grandmont.

Ang. 18.82.2 —— The same. Edited by W. C. Harris. New York. 1883. 12°. 6 plates.

This edition does not contain the chapter on trout culture, as the editor considers it "far behind the present advanced status of fish culture in America."

*Ang. 45.35  Foster, W. A. Songs on angling, etc. New York. 1886. 8°. pp. 20.

"25 copies privately reprinted from 'Whistle-Binkie' and the 'Book of Scottish song.'"

"350 exemplaires."

"Translated, or rather imitated, from a Latin poem De vetulâ, attributed to Richard de Fournival... The passage which treats of fishing is headed 'Comment Ovide tendait aux poissons,' and consists of 68 lines. De Fournival's work cannot but be interesting to the angling bibliophile, as showing that more than 400 years ago most of the modern modes of fishing were practised... The poem was formerly attributed to Ovid, and a story was current that a copy had been discovered in his tomb. It was first printed, probably at Rome, about 1470, under the title: 'P. Ovidii Nasionis liber de vetula.'"—Westwood and Satchell.
ANGLING, FISHES, AND FISH CULTURE.

This is a less extensive work than his "Book on angling," and was written for those who desired a cheaper publication.

"From the Encyclopedia Britannica, 9th ed.," ii. 32–44.

Five of the plates are colored.

Osmund Lambert in his "Angling literature in England" says of this work, "No book so well answers the angler's purpose."

*Ang. 18.67.5 — The same. 3d ed., revised and improved. London. 1872. sm. 8°. Front. and 16 plates.

A new frontispiece containing likenesses of the author and his gillie, and a new colored plate of salmon flies have been added. A few changes have also been made in the other plates, and the work has been somewhat enlarged.

This edition contains between thirty and forty pages of fresh matter. Plate 1 has been entirely recast; the other illustrations are the same as those of the preceding edition.

Includes many articles originally published in the Field.

Chapters 2, 3, and 10 of vol. i., and chapter 5 of vol. iii. contain accounts of fishing excursions.

Many of the chapters were originally published in Baily's magazine, 1860-61, with the title, "The experiences of Sydney Godolphin Yahoo, Esq."

Chapters 5, 10, 12, 13 of vol. i. and chapter 6 of vol. ii. describe fishing excursions.

Northern memoirs calculated for the meridian of Scotland, wherein most or all of the cities, sea-ports, rivers, and rivulets are described; with choice collections of various discoveries, remarkable observations, etc. To which is added, the contemplative & practical angler, by way of diversion; with a narrative of that dextrous and mysterious art experimented in England, and perfected in more remote and solitary parts of Scotland. By way of dialogue. Writ in the year 1658, but not till now made publick. London. 1694. 16°.

"As a specimen of style this book is sui generis. . . . Franck is the first English writer on angling who describes that mystical fish, the burbolt. . . . There is also an interesting mention of three noted anglers of the time, Merrils, Fawlkner, and Owldham, whom some bibliophiles suppose to have written three several angling works, since lost to the world. . . . A notice of the work will be found in the Retrospectiv review, vol. viii. pp. 170–194, and also in the 'Censura literaria.' The extreme rarity of the original edition is somewhat exaggerated. We have had knowledge of five or six copies." — Westwood and Satchell.

To John Barlbt, who sent a viipound brook: trout.

Fit for an Abbot of Thleme,
For the whole Cardinals' College, or
The Pope himself to see in dream
Before his lenten vision gleam,
He lies there, - the Sage of Greg.

His precious flanks, with stars besprinkled,
Worthy to swim in Castaly!
The friend by whom such gifts are sent
For him Thale bumpers full to spent,
His health! be kind his fast all!
I see him trace the wayward brook
Amid the forest mysteries,
Where at their Looths the apron loth,
Or where, with many a ghostly look
It loons its woodland histories.

I see leaf and tree-fleck lend
Their tremulous, soul weights,
To smooth the dark pool, to grudging bed;
(Oh, were him, Anne, a were a friend,
With amorous delicade)

I see him step with caution Ioe,
Leep as if shed with mocassins,
From a in Church — v she please you.
Sweet grace is safe as in a few
From all our common stock & sins.
The meeting fly I see him last,
That as a worthless falls as soft,
A flash! a whoot! he has him fast!
Dr. Tyros, how that strongf last
Tontures o affalls us off!

Unshutterd he is calm as the sky
Looks on our tragicomedies,
This way w that he lets him fly,
A Sunbeam Shuttle, then to die
Hands him with Cold a plomb, at Eco.
The friend who gave our board such gust
Life's care, may he overstake it half,
And when Death holds him, as he must,
Still he'd do it faithfully, as I trust,
And then Holmes write his epitaph!

Oh, born beneath the Fishes' sign,
Of Constellations happiest,
May there a poet be, and a Waltz done,
May Horace pour him Mapirica wine,
And Burns Scotch drink, the happiest!

And when they come his book to weigh
And how he used the talents his,
One stone scale in the scale shall lay
(If trust he'd scales) o' tired multivell,
The wrong side of the balance.

Most of the plates have the date 1822.

At the end is pasted a slip of paper on which is written the following acrostic:

Where silvery streams with rippling music play,
Angling along their banks oft wouldst thou stray,
Losing thyself awhile in pleasant dreams,
Those quaintly simple, prose-poetic streams
Of charming colloquy, refreshing, bright,
Ne'er read, dear honest Angler, save with new delight.
